On the 50th anniversary of the first moon landing on the moon, the Apollo 11 Lunar Module, Eagle, broke away from Command Module, Columbia, and came in too low for the top of the flagpole. The two crew members then had to try to find a way to get the flag up. And just at the moment when they were headed for an impact with the lunar surface, Columbia swerved off path and flew into orbit around the moon. It was the first manned lunar orbit. In the subsequent mission, Apollo 15, Apollo 17, and just last week, all the crews returned to Earth to the spectacular splashdown near the moon. Both missions of the Apollo astronauts were spanned 50 years and will soon be hailed as the crowning achievement of the American space program. The moon landing of Apollo 11 was to be the first one, but the crew of Apollo 1 were tragically killed during the launch of
